Reconciliation in Schools and Early Learning

NAKRA
GUNNA
WALI

Narragunnawali (narra-gunna-wally) is a Ngunnawal word.

The Ngunnawal people are Traditional Owners and Custodians of the land and waterways on which Reconciliation Australia's Canberra office is located.

Narragunnawali encompasses:

- alive
- well-being
- coming together
- peace.

WHAT DO YOU MEAN? RECONCILIATION?

We can't change what happened in the past, but we can make a better future by understanding the past.

Reconciliation means understanding and respecting each other. It's a good thing to look to in the future.

Only when we have equality can we have reconciliation. Otherwise it's just another bullshit word.

We have so much healing to do. We must come together in smaller groups, clan with clan, Murri with Islander. It's going to take a long time.

If I thought it would change things, I'd really get involved.

Isn't reconciliation supposed to happen when you've had a fight and then you make up?

Us Kooris haven't done anything wrong but I guess reconciliation's a two-way street. If other Australians do their bit and treat us right, we can look to the future and move on together.

I want to know how white people feel about reconciliation.

Reconciliation is a lovely word isn't it. It's a bit of a fantasy at the moment though. We have so many problems in our own communities.

I don't feel I should have to feel guilty about what happened to Aboriginal people. I wasn't even born when all this was going on.

Reconciliation? I'm all for it. Where do I sign? Aboriginal people have so much to offer, we are really foolish to turn our backs on these people.

It's a long way off, but we should give it a go and not just put it down.

Race Relations

All Australians understand and value Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander and non-Indigenous cultures, rights and experiences, which results in stronger relationships based on trust and respect and that are free of racism.

Equality and equity

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples participate equally in a range of life opportunities and the unique rights of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples are recognised and upheld.

Unity

An Australian society that values and recognises Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures and heritage as a proud part of a shared national identity.

Institutional Integrity

The active support of reconciliation by the nation's political, business and community structures.

Historical Acceptance

All Australians understand and accept the wrongs of the past and the impact of these wrongs. Australia makes amends for the wrongs of the past and ensures they are never repeated.

WHAT IS A RAP?

A Reconciliation Action Plan (RAP) is a formal statement of commitment to reconciliation. A school or early learning service can develop a RAP using the Narragunnawali platform to register existing initiatives or to begin a new journey.

The key steps for developing a RAP are:

- Establish a RAP Working Group: A diverse Working Group ensures the responsibility of implementing reconciliation initiatives does not sit with one person. Your Working Group can include teaching and non-teaching staff, parents, students and community members.
- Complete the Reflection Survey: To assist with planning, the Reflection Survey gives a snapshot of reconciliation in the school or early learning service.
- Write a Vision for Reconciliation: A Vision clearly communicates the school or early learning service's commitment to reconciliation to the community.
- Add RAP Actions: There are 39 RAP Actions to select from, including 14 that are a minimum requirement.
- Submit the RAP: RAPs are submitted to the Principal or Director for approval and to Reconciliation Australia for review.

The RAP framework below outlines the need to develop relationships, respect and opportunities in the classroom, around the school and with the community.

RAP WORKING GROUP

A RAP should not be one person's responsibility, nor should it be the responsibility of only Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander staff or parents at the school or early learning service. The RAP should become part of the school or early learning service's everyday business.

A RAP Working Group requires a Chair (or co-Chairs). The roles of the Chair should be agreed by the wider RAP Working Group, but suggestions include:

- Organising RAP Working Group meetings (e.g. one per term)
- Being the key contact for communication
- Being the champion for the RAP in the school or early learning service.

REFLECTION SURVEY

The Reflection Survey provides the RAP Working Group with a snapshot of the current state of reconciliation in the school or early learning service. The Reflection Survey is divided into three areas: in the classroom, around the school, and with the community. It is most effective if completed together with the whole RAP Working Group. If unsure about an answer, come back to it later. The answers to questions will never be made public, they are for the RAP Working Group only.

Building relationships and working together with your local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community is essential for the success of your RAP, as well as developing a deeper understanding of Australia's First Peoples.

Working relationships between schools or early learning services and Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community members should be built on trust, mutual respect and inclusiveness. Communication, collaboration and consultation are also key to sustaining successful partnerships with your local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community.

As with any relationship, it may take time to get to know each other and to be able to create an atmosphere of safety and trust, in order for all parties to express views openly and honestly. It is also important not to put too much pressure on community members to be involved, as they may feel overwhelmed.

Why is it important to have a relationship with the Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander community?

Whether or not your school or early learning service has Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students or children, building relationships is an important part of creating learning environments that demonstrate respect for, and pride in, local Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories, cultures and contributions. These culturally respectful environments ultimately improve learning outcomes for all students and children.

As acknowledged by the Australian Curriculum and Reporting Authority (ACARA), when mandating Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures as part of school curriculum, there are two distinct needs in the Australian education system:

- that Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students are able to see themselves, their identities and their cultures reflected in the curriculum of each of the learning areas, can fully participate in the curriculum and can build their self-esteem; and
- that all students engage in reconciliation, respect and recognition of the world's oldest continuous

- Talk with parents: Building relationships with parents of children and students is an important art of building relationships with the wider community. Encourage all staff in your school or early learning service to open an ongoing and positive dialogue with parents or carers of any Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander students and children. You may, for example, wish to set up a regular morning tea or yarning circle session in your school or early learning service's Family and Community Room to engage in friendly conversation with parents. Bear local communicative protocols in mind when carrying out these conversations.

Vision for Reconciliation

Our school views reconciliation as an opportunity to redress the inequities that exist between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and non-Indigenous Australians. It means acknowledging the diverse knowledges, expertise, achievements and contributions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and drawing on these, in partnership with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, to enhance the life experiences of all Australians. A reconciled Australia rejoices in the successes of its diverse population who work together in partnership to ensure that everyone enjoys equal access to all of Australia's natural and cultural resources. A reconciled Australia acknowledges the unique rights of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to their land, languages and culture. A reconciled Australia has high expectations for all its citizens and ensures that everyone is adequately supported to achieve their fullest potentials.

Acknowledgment of Country

Our school acknowledges and pays respect to the past, present and future Traditional Custodians and Elders of this nation and the continuation of cultural, spiritual and educational practices of Aboriginal and Torres Islander peoples.

Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander People in the Classroom	We are committed to welcoming Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people into our classrooms as guests to work alongside our students and children in learning activities. Having an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander presence in learning environments is vital when teaching about Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander histories and cultures.	Karen W	Ongoing

Cultural Competence for Staff	We will reflect on our current level of cultural competence and provide staff with a range of opportunities to build and extend their knowledge and understanding of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander cultures. We also commit to supporting staff to independently seek out and participate in a variety of cultural awareness experiences that assist them on their own journey of understanding. VISION FOR RECONCILIATION

Our school views reconciliation as an opportunity to redress the inequities that exist between Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and non-Indigenous Australians. It means acknowledging the diverse knowledges, expertise, achievements and contributions of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples and drawing on these, in partnership with Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples, to enhance the life experiences of all Australians. A reconciled Australia rejoices in the successes of its diverse population who work together in partnership to ensure that everyone enjoys equal access to all of Australia's natural and cultural resources. A reconciled Australia acknowledges the unique rights of Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander peoples to their land, languages and culture. A reconciled Australia has high expectations for all its citizens and ensures that everyone is adequately supported to achieve their fullest potentials.

What is Reconciliation?

HEAD (Think)

What do you think or already know about reconciliation?

HEART (Feel)

*How do you feel about reconciliation?
How is it part of your story?*

HAND (Act)

How can you take action toward reconciliation?

Thank you!
